OPPORTUNITIES
At the meeting this past week in Montgomery, Mr. Ted W. Davis of Winndixie and Kwik-Check had this to say concerning Alabama produced products: "We are unlimited in what we can purchase from you," Governor Brewer said on the same occasion. "It is appropriate that recognition be duly given to the value and promotion of Alabama grown products."

I am quoting these two distinguished men and leaders to point out that we have in Coffee County great opportunities to increase production of cattle, hogs, poultry, vegetable crops as well as peanuts, corn and cotton.

HOT HOUSE PRODUCTION
Clayton Stanley of Route 2, Elba is becoming enthusiastic as he makes plans for building a small hot house to grow tomatoes, Stanley works at Dorsey Trailers in Elba and has some spare time. He has thought for several months about growing tomatoes year round. Even though Stanley knows that this is a highly technical business, he is willing to try.

I have made plans for Perry Smith and our Extension Truck Crop Specialist to visit with me early in May to go over some of the pitfalls. If other Coffee County folks are interested in this, get in touch with me and we will help you.

OPTIMISTIC
My banker friends in the county, especially D. F. Reeves of the Citizens Bank in Enterprise, accuse me of being too optimistic of several things. Right now I am optimistic of several things in Coffee County and two of these are the production of cattle and hogs this year. In the first place, hog prices are holding up extremely well; cattle prices are better than in several years and our pasture ought to be better in May and June than they have been in years' due to rainfall and better fertilization. So I am optimistic about these two farm enterprises.

Weather folks can be wrong but one leading forecaster is saying that more rainfall than usual is expected in May. In fact he says, "abundant moisture is expected over most of the South right on through this summer and it will begin with very heavy rains in May." We will see, I hope that events will show that I am not overly optimistic.

COTTON FARMERS TO VOTE

Cotton farmers in Coffee County will vote this month to decide whether, in 1970, they want to be able to sell or lease their cotton allotments outside the county, Roy L. Ellis, Chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee, has announced. The referendum applies only to 1970 and will be conducted by mail during the period of May 3 through May 9. Ballots may also be delivered by hand to the ASCS county office.

The only question to be decided by the balloting is whether upland cotton allotments may be transferred during the next year to other farms by sale or lease. Such transfers may be made by sale or lease for a period of time agreed on by the parties involved. In no case may transfer be made outside the State. An affirmative vote by at least two-thirds of the county's cotton farmers and family, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Nelson, Frankie and Stacie of Moore, Oklahoma cotton drop during 1970, during the week of April

Jus' Ramblin'

BY LUCILE K. WOODHAM McRAE

I HAD YOU'VE never seen anyone as excited and as upset as Mack was when he found that a manna dog with nine puppies had set up house keeping at his house about three weeks ago. To hear him talk you would think he dislikes all critters but it is the reverse and I tell him he is covering up. But he has the dogs of the neighborhood trained to surround his house when they start proving around. So that particular morning he saw this strange dog in the back yard and upon investigating he found nine puppies that were apparently a couple of days old. In the first place he is opposed to animals being in the house so he got a box and brought them out and put them away back in the backyard. I guess, looking they would go away. Then he thought about chasing off the manna dog and now what would he do with nine puppies.

He went all over the neighborhood in an effort to get someone to claim them. In the afternoon he telephoned the "You'll have to make some arrangements for tonight" I was downright puzzled. We had been staying at the same house and now suddenly I would have to make some other arrangements for the night? I asked him just what he was talking about. You know how loud he can bark and when he gets excited you would think he is trying to get a message across to someone on the other side of town so I had to hold the telephone receiver away to keep from going deaf. Then he told me about the puppies and that he had run the manna dog away. I told him she'd be back, not to worry, and then I reminded him that he was going to have quite a job of bottle feeding and chasing her away. Later he heard something when he saw the house and upon investigating he found nine puppies that were apparently a couple of days old. interesting for some particular reason. There just has to be something special about that area of Lake Jackson. We know that this entire area was a forest with many large virgin trees growing which have long since been destroyed by man. Merton says "They overlooked some interesting history here at Lake Jackson." In referring to Florida's lack of interest in that side of the lake.

Florida has the most wonderful attraction of any town I know of anywhere. Florida has a natural body of water that is the most beautiful of any in the world. It just needs a little help toward adding to that beauty. Or interest and a surprise to me was that Merton said about the lake's elevation being greater than that of Montgomery's to the north. He has an exceptionally varied collection of old maps and Indian artifacts, including many of the arrowheads and other hunting and working tools in the lake area, a natural center of Indian activity.

Merton REEVES received some special recognition in Sunday's Pensacola News-Journal as the history of this area and Lake Jackson in particular. Merton is vitally interested in the history of Lake Jackson, and the area. In reading the article entitled "David's Lake in Florida Renamed Jackson," Merton states that he thinks Gen. Andrew Jackson and his army camped on the spot where his beautiful home now stands. It is believed that during those days most of the area around the lake was swampy and that being the highest point near the lake is Merton's reasoning for being the approximate location. But it appears that Florida and what is now East Fifth Avenue could have been high ground. If you will notice there is a ridge near the top of which is now East Fifth Avenue. Many people believe that this ridge was created by a meteor falling making a wide deep area for the lake and that was the side on which most of the soil was pushed.

The story of Lake Jackson is a most fascinating one. None of us really know the history but if anyone ever does it will be Merton. He has been interested in making a study of the area for a long time. He has secured maps from Florida and Alabama and has talked to old folk during the years as to what they knew about the area in early days.

But Merton believes the south side of Lake Jackson is most respected by those who enjoy its many activities, fishing, boating, swimming, fishing, picnicking. Many family reunions are held on the shores of Lake Jackson. It is exciting just to think about it and I am so very happy that it is a part of Florida. Though it is a place of beauty and happiness it has also been one of sorrow when a loved one has drowned in its waters, but that is a problem and a condition of any and all bodies of water.

Florida is fortunate in having Lake Jackson, something any of our neighboring towns would really appreciate. Sometimes

I don't think we appreciate Lake Jackson as we should but as Merton says, "the public is becoming more history conscious, creating a demand for a greater local research effort."

BITTER WEEDS

One of my friends and I were talking about how weeds used to eat bitter weeds and still do this time of year. He said he figured that if a cow could stand to eat them he could stand to drink the milk. I never was that brave and I can remember when we would have to keep a cow up for two or three weeks during the early spring so as to avoid the bitter milk. But nowdays thanks to 2, 4-D and other materials we can control many noxious weeds.

Come to think of it, bitter weeds, dog finna and several other weeds are robbing our pastures lands right now of fertilizer and moisture. And there probably isn't a lot of milk or beef gained in a hundred acres of these robbers. 2, 4-D used properly will do an excellent job and is inexpensive. If you are growing beef or dairy cattle, why not give your pastures a chance to produce some money-making grass instead of weeds.

and Sale at Dothan, Coffee County's three top selling steers brought good prices, Allen Weeks' Reserve Champion Shorthorn (Grand Champion in the county show) brought $1,250 per pound, Gary Bowman's Choice Angus calf brought $7,500 per pound and Danny Lewis' calf brought $7,000 per pound. This was a good $6 above last year's prices. The parents of the 4-H Club members and all of us in the County Extension in Coffee County for making this show and sale possible.

YELLOW CENTIPEDE

speaking to the Turfgrass Shortcourse at Auburn a few years back had this to say about Centipede lawns: "Did anyone see a Centipede lawn this spring that was getting pretty good? Well, it's not dead and had to be replanted? If you worked in a lawn care area, you would be glad to see a Centipede lawn. I am sure you did. If you are like most people I know, you wondered why."

In tests where quite a bit of phosphorus was used, Centipede was completely winter killed. In plots where no phosphorus was applied, there was no killing. In other tests the plots that were clean with practically no yellowing or winter killing were the plots low in phosphorus. So it appears from our work that the level of phosphorus in the soil definitely affects Centipede survival.

I am quoting Dr. House on this to point out the importance of soil testing. Centipede lawns before fertilizer is applied in the spring to determine pretty good. If you have already fertilized this spring, don't put anything else out until next February or March and then only if the soil test indicates a need for fertilizer.

STANDS

I talked with several folks over the county on this to point out the importance of peanuts and corn. Leon Weeks of Kinston said it appeared that most folks were getting pretty good stands. Fred Stinson on the Damascus Road said he was getting pretty good stands of corn, Marion and Ray Sanders of the New Hope-Roeton community report that they have fine stands of peanuts. But just about everybody is ready for it to turn warm. I would go along with the remark made the other night at the Cal Show: "Crops won't really start growing until it gets warm."

The ARMY GREEN

SFC Johnnie M. Blalock
ARMY RECRUITER

Leave it to the psychological warfare people in Vietnam to come up with a new form of "advertising." Working with a Japanese firm, they have developed a process of printing up to eight different messages and pictures on a single bar of soap. As the soap is highly desired item at refugee camps and is also used as part of the civil action program in Vietnam, who knows, it might even replace television commercials some day.

WANT TO LEARN A LANGUAGE

If you are interested in joining the Army and becoming a linguist, drop in and see us right away. The Army is prepared to offer training in one of 30 different languages to qualified men and women and will guarantee this training in writing. Instruction is usually given at either the Defense Language Institute in Washington, D. C., or at the 'Presidio of Monterey. As you know, language training will always come in handy, whether or not you stay in the service.

DENTAL CARE FOR VETERANS

Just a reminder to our friends who might have recently returned home from service. Veterans who need dental care for conditions that developed during their active military service should apply to the Veterans Administration within the first year after their release from military service. The one-year limitation does not apply to treatment of service-connected dental disabilities that are severe enough to warrant compensation. You can obtain further information from the local office of the Veterans Administration.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

This week's question should clear up confusion in the minds of many women. We are often asked if a nurse could be married when she joins the service. The answer is yes. Nurses can be married at the time they enter service or may marry while in service. However, they cannot be appointed or retained if they have any dependents under the age of 18.
